

Bereavement Volunteers

Volunteers are needed to help extend two vital services offered by Rowcroft Hospice; enabling support to be given to more people in the difficult weeks and months after the loss of a loved one. The much needed bereavement support services are offered by teams of volunteers, under the guidance of a dedicated bereavement co-ordinator. After an initial assessment by the bereavement co-ordinator, volunteers provide one-to-one support both at the hospice and in people's homes.

Rosemary Minshall has volunteered as a bereavement visitor at Rowcroft for many years

“How can you do that, isn't it depressing?” is a question often asked. Yes, it does have its tough moments but I can honestly say that there is great pleasure in seeing someone whose life has fallen apart with grief gradually pick up the pieces again and begin to smile.’